The Directories Collection will be useful to anyone engaged in genealogical or general historical research, and to libraries which may wish to augment or preserve their existing reference collections.

Directories are prized by scholars and genealogists for their information on families and businesses, and on the demographics of cities and towns. The complete collection includes Canadian directories and gazetteers from provinces, counties, townships, cities, and towns across Canada. Medical registers, college handbooks, telephone company and street address lists, and other specialized directories are included.

The Early Canadiana Research Collection

The Early Canadiana project is an ongoing program to locate, catalogue, and republish on microfiche selected Canadian books, pamphlets, and serials.

This unique microform collection contains over sixty thousand titles, spanning three and a half centuries of Canadian development. The collection is an essential resource for research in many different disciplines - from North American native studies to religion and philosophy; from genealogy to French Canadian language and literature.

The Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions (CIHM) was established in 1978 at the request of Canadian scholars and librarians. Its mandate is to identify, locate, microfilm, and distribute a retrospective Canadiana collection which will bring together fragmented collections and make rare and scarce Canadiana more widely available.

The Institute is an independent, non-profit corporation governed by a board of directors composed of distinguished Canadian scholars and directors of major research libraries. The selection criteria for each collection has been established by advisory committees of scholars and collections development specialists.

Features

The collection has some important features:

- Flexibility
  The monographs collection can be acquired complete or may be purchased in subject categories.

Les érudits et les généalogistes apprécient énormément les répertoires car ils leur fournissent des informations sur les familles at les entreprises, et sur la démographie des villes et des localités.

La collection complète inclut les répertoires canadiens et les répertoires géographiques des provinces, des comtés, des cantons, des villes et des localités de tout le Canada. Elle inclut aussi les registres médicaux, les livrets des collèges, les listes des compagnies de téléphone et des adresses, ainsi que d'autres répertoires spécialisés.

Vous pouvez acheter la Collection de répertoires d'avant 1900 à titre ou série complète ou en cinq segments régionaux. Vous pouvez aussi acheter des titres individuels.

Historique du projet Canadiana anciens

Le projet Canadiana anciens est un programme visant à localiser, cataloguer et republier sur microfiche des livres, pamphlets et périodiques canadiens choisis.

Cette collection unique de documents miniaturisés couvre trois siècles et demi de développement canadien et contient plus de soixante mille titres. La collection constitue une ressource essentielle aux recherches académiques effectuées dans de nombreuses disciplines, d'études autochtones nord-américaines à la religion et à la philosophie, en passant par la généalogie, la langue et la littérature canadiennes françaises.

L'Institut canadien de microreproductions historiques (ICMH) a été créé en 1978 à la demande d'érudits et de bibliothécaires canadiens. Son mandat consiste à identifier, localiser et enregistrer sur microfilm une collection rétrospective du Canada qui soit la plus complète possible et qui servira à améliorer l'accès aux Canadiana anciens en rassemblant des collections disséminées, diffusant plus largement des documents rares ou peu courants, et en garantissant la préservation des Canadiana anciens, qu'elles soient conservées au Canada ou à l'étranger.

- Access
  The collection is supported by on-line tapes in CANMARC format which can be mounted on library on-line public access catalogues for instant access to all records.

- Ease of Use
  Publication on microfiche, which facilitates handling and access.

- Republication of Scarce Materials
  The collection brings together rare and scarce materials, and materials formerly scattered across Canada and abroad.

- Low Cost Preservation
  Preserves original editions by providing substitute reference copies for heavily used and deteriorating originals.
